

REBECCA NASH

Firmly established as one of the brightest jazz talents in the UK, pianist Rebecca Nash is now garnering an international reputation for her distinctive sound, full of artistry and heart.

“At the vanguard of innovative and compelling new music” (Downbeat Magazine)

Redefining Element 78, Rebecca’s latest project and follow-up album to Peaceful King features the eminent saxophonist, John O’Gallagher and presents a new compositional voice of increasing clarity. Having distilled elements of her previous album, fusing them together with classical influences such as Debussy, Messiaen, Bartok along with free improv and post tonal approaches, this music is an exciting new departure. The album will be released on Whirlwind Recordings in December 2022.

Rebecca also works closely with singer-songwriter Sara Colman; the pair are currently preparing to record an album for Stoney Lane Records entitled Ribbons. She also regularly collaborates with trumpeter/producer Nick Walters with whom she hatched a new collaboration in lockdown. They will be releasing this music on D.O.T. Records in due course too.

Musical highlights include: the EFG London Jazz Festival, Cheltenham Jazz Festival, We Out Here, Love Supreme Festival, Manchester Jazz Festival, and Glastonbury Festival amongst others. Rebecca gave a broadcast for BBC Radio 3, and recently a solo performance for Turner Sims.
